

STATE OF WASHINGTON
DEPARTMENT OF LICENSING
REAL ESTATE COMMISSION

WASHINGTON STATE GUIDELINES FOR INTERNET ADVERTISING AND SOCIAL MEDIA
ON THE INTERNET

ADOPTED: March 20, 2013

I. Introduction

A. Why are we doing this?

- As with all real estate advertising, the firm's name or assumed name, as licensed, must be prominently displayed. These guidelines are to assist real estate firms and licensees in complying with the law.
- Provide standards for online practice by licensees and licensed firms that will enhance online real estate consumer protection.
- Provide a framework for licensed entities to create their own Internet Policies and Procedures that addresses and enforces appropriate online licensee practice in compliance with the law.

B. Who is our primary audience?

- Washington Real Estate Firms
- Washington Real Estate Licensees
- Washington Real Estate Consumers
- Website design and/or service providers

II. Disclosure

Licensed entities can use the internet in multiple ways to contact consumers about real estate services and to advertise properties or their services. More ways to use the internet are likely to be invented. "Licensee" and "Licensed Firm" disclosure will help to ensure that online consumers know when they are dealing with a licensed entity, who they are, and where their primary business office is located.

A. "Licensed Firm Disclosure" should contain the following information:

- The firm's name or assumed name(s) as licensed or registered with Washington State Department of Licensing.

B. "Licensee Disclosure" should contain the following information:

- the licensee's name as shown on their license as issued by the Washington State Department of Licensing, Real Estate Program.
- the registered firm name or assumed name of the firm in which the licensee is affiliated as registered with Washington State Department of Licensing, Real Estate Program.

"Full Disclosure" refers to both "licensed firm disclosure" and "licensee disclosure".

C. Guidelines for on-line disclosure

All Internet related advertising that consumers can view or experience, as a separate unit, (for example, email messages or Web pages) should require full disclosure. The burden of proof of such full disclosures falls on the licensee, the firm, and designated broker (licensed entities) when addressing a consumer complaint. This disclosure does not apply once an agency relationship has been established with a buyer or seller. Examples of online communications are listed below:

- The Web
Whenever a licensed entity owns a website or controls its content, every viewable page should include full disclosure. (A "viewable page" is one that may or may not scroll beyond the borders of the screen and includes the use of framed pages.) If you give permission for a 3rd party to advertise your listings maintain regular and thorough oversight to ensure the information is correct. Adhere to copyright laws.
- Email, Newsgroups, Discussion Lists, Bulletin Boards
Such formats should include a full disclosure at the beginning or end of each message. This would not apply to communications between a licensee and a member of the public provided that the member of the public has sent a communication to the licensee and the licensee's initial communication contained the disclosure information required above.
- Instant Messages
Full disclosure is not necessary in this format if the licensed entity provided the written full disclosure via another format or medium (e.g., e-mail or letter) prior to providing, or offering to provide licensable services.
- Chat
Full disclosure prior to providing or offering to provide licensable services during the chat session or in text visible on the same webpage that contains the chat session.
- Social Media
Full disclosure should be prominently displayed and easily understood and be no more than one click away from the viewable page. Each real estate firm should have and maintain a written policy regarding their licensee's use of social media.
- Multimedia Advertising (e.g. Web based, executable e-mail attachments, etc.)
Full disclosure should be visible as part of the advertising message.
- Banner Ads
Should link to a webpage that has full disclosure that is a single click away from the viewable page, unless the banner ad has such full disclosure.

III. Procuring Prospects "On-line"

The Internet poses additional potential problem areas that may require caution on the part of licensees when procuring prospects.

- A. Licensees who maintain individual Web sites should ensure that when listings have expired, the listings are removed from Web sites in a timely manner. A possible solution to this problem might be to design a web site program to automatically remove a listing at expiration.
- B. Similarly, sites maintained by the multiple listing services of which the licensee is a member should be updated in a timely manner.
- C. Licensees, who submit information to third party sites, should provide written communication of any change of listing status to the publisher in a timely manner.
- D. Do not give the impression that you are licensed, or are providing services, in jurisdictions where you are not licensed.

- E. Licensed entities should not advertise other licensed entities' listings without the written permission and if given, should not alter the online display or any informational part of the listing without written permission of the Designated Broker or listing broker.
- F. Metatags are descriptive words hidden in a Web site's HTML code that search engines use to index the Web site. Most sites use common words such as real estate, Washington, city names, homes, houses, etc. Those uses are fine. But some Web site owners have also inserted their competitor's names into the metatags, so that when a potential customer searches for their site, the competitor's site will also come up as a match. This should not be done. Courts have ruled that this constitutes trademark infringement.
- G. All licensees shall periodically review the advertising and marketing information on their web site and update as necessary to assure that the information is current and not misleading.

IV. Disclaimers

These guidelines are subject to change at any time and as practice on the Internet evolves additional guidelines may be added.

Licensees should be aware that all statutes and rules respecting advertising apply equally to the Internet. This would include web sites, e-mail, and any other potential "on-line" identification, representation, promotion, or solicitation to the public that is related to licensed real estate activity.

Licensees advertising on the Internet should seek legal advice regarding compliance with local, state and national regulations. Compliance with Washington State guidelines does not ensure compliance with other jurisdiction guidelines, laws or regulations.
