What happens after you submit your complaint

1. We determine if the complaint falls within our legal authority.

- If it is not something covered by our laws, we will notify you.
- If it appears to fall within our authority, we may conduct an investigation. Our investigator will act as an impartial, fact-finding third party. During the investigation, they are not representing you (the complainant), the Department or professional board, or the service provider. The investigator may contact the person you filed your complaint against to ask for a response, which may include providing them with a copy of your complaint. The length of time an investigation takes depends on current caseload and the complexity of the case.

2. After all the facts have been gathered, we evaluate the information.

- If the evidence fails to support a violation of the laws, the case will be dismissed.
- If a violation has occurred, our Department or professional board may recommend disciplinary action depending on the severity of the violation. Disciplinary action generally involves one or more of the following:
  - Reprimand
  - Fines
  - Suspension or revocation of the license
- The service provider or professional licensee may request a hearing to dispute the program's decision.
- We will notify you of the outcome of your complaint.

Our decisions don't constitute legal opinion. We don't have the authority to recover funds, award damages, or make judicial determinations. To pursue these types of remedies, you should seek legal advice.
