Introduction

Thank you for your interest in the Washington State notary public program. The Washington State Department of Licensing is committed to ensuring that the high standards of the notary public commission are upheld with regards to all of the over 70,000 licensed notaries in the state. To that end, to provide notaries public with guidance on common issues that come up during the notarial process and to guide prospective notaries through the application process, the Department has put together this guide and made it available to anyone who needs assistance.

Current notaries may also wish to read this guide to learn about the changes to the notary rules and laws that may affect their business. In 2017, the Washington legislature adopted new notary laws which come into effect July 1, 2018, and prompted the Department of Licensing to establish new rules which come into effect at the same time. These changes will have considerable impacts on what a notary may do and requirements they must meet and notaries are responsible for knowing this information.

The notary public commission is a venerable position, created in the late 1800s to help prevent fraud. Because of the historical and functional significance, becoming a notary public should not be taken lightly. A notary public is responsible for knowing the laws and rules that govern the position, and while this guide will be a helpful tool, prospective notaries should take time to familiarize themselves with the position, its requirements, and state law. The state statutes and rules that primarily govern notaries appear in chapter 42.45 of the Revised Code of Washington (RCW) and chapter 30830 of the Washington Administrative Code (WAC). Notaries are also subject to Washington’s Uniform Regulation of Business and Professions Act, chapter 18.235 RCW.

The Licensing and Renewal Process

The Department of Licensing has worked to keep the notary public application process as simple as possible. A prospective notary need only submit a complete application, proof of a $10,000 surety bond, and appropriate fees to the Department of Licensing in order to begin the process. Once an applicant has completed all application requirements and proven that he or she is eligible, the Department will have a new certificate of commission mailed out promptly.

New in 2018, notaries public can also apply for an electronic records notary public endorsement, which allows the notary to perform notarial acts on electronic documents as well as paper documents. The application process is similar to the application process for the commission, and can be done at the same time or separately.

Qualifications

RCW 42.45.200; WAC 308-30-030

To receive a notary public commission, an applicant must meet the following basic qualifications:

- Be 18 years or older
- Be a citizen or permanent legal resident of the United States
- Be a resident of Washington, or have a place of employment or practice in the state
- Be able to read and write English

Please note: Even if an applicant meets these basic qualifications, he or she could be disqualified from receiving a notary public commission for any of the reasons stated in RCW 42.45.210 or RCW 18.235.130.

How to apply

RCW 42.45.200; RCW 42.45.210; WAC 308-30-030; WAC 308-30-040; WAC 308-30-060

To apply for a notary public commission, complete the following steps:

Step 1: Complete the application

The notary public application can be found on the Department of Licensing website at www.dol.wa.gov/business/notary. As a new applicant, you are required to complete sections A, B, and D. Section C is optional, for those who wish to apply for an electronic records notary public endorsement (more information on this optional endorsement appears in a later section of this handbook).
Current notaries may notice that the notary application has changed several times over the last several years. In the past, the changes have been mostly structural and layout, and the Department was able to accept older versions of notary applications. The latest application, however, has additional required questions, which means that the Department will require all applicants to use the most recent version of the notary application.

Below, the new application is covered in more detail.

Section A is where you will provide information about yourself. There are two questions that you should take note of. The first question about citizenship is a new statutory requirement, which requires that notary publics be citizens or permanent legal residents of the United States. Also, the field labelled “Notary commission name” is for your name as you will sign it and how you want your name to appear on your stamp and your commission certificate, which must contain your last name, and at least initials of your first and middle names. The rest of the information should be filled out as listed.
Section B asks about current or past sanctions or criminal convictions. Answering “Yes” to a question will not automatically guarantee an application will be denied; each application will be evaluated on an individual basis to determine if the applicant will be able to uphold the duties of the position before a decision is made. To see more about the information the Department will consider, see, RCW 42.45.210 and RCW 18.235.130.

Section D is the oath of office. This section needs to be signed and sworn to in front of a current notary public. The oath of office is a sworn statement to uphold the standards of the notary public and that the information in the application is true and correct. To complete this section, you should take your application, with the application complete except for this section, to a current notary, who will help you complete the application.

Step 2: Secure a surety bond

As a requirement of the notary public commission, every notary public must have a $10,000 surety bond in their name. The surety bond is an insurance policy which protects the public in the event that an improper notarization causes financial damage. This is different than errors and omissions insurance, which is not required for a notary public. If you have insurance policies for other reasons, such as automobile or homeowner’s insurance, you can speak to your provider for more information about surety bonds and their requirements.
Step 3: Submit the application

Once you have secured a $10,000 surety bond and had your application form notarized, submit the application to the Department of Licensing. Include a copy of the bond rider that the insurance company provided. The Department of Licensing does not need proof of any errors and omissions insurance.

Mail your application, along with a $30 (or $45 if you are also applying for an electronic records Notary Public endorsement, discussed below) check or money order made out to the Department of Licensing, to the following address:

Notary Public Program
Department of Licensing PO
Box 35001
Seattle, WA 98124-3401

Please allow up to thirty days to process the application. Once the application is processed and approved, the Department will mail a commission certificate.

Step 4: Get a notary stamp/seal

RCW 42.45.150; RCW 42.45.160; WAC 308-30-070; WAC 308-30-080; WAC 308-30-090

Once you have received your notary public commission certificate, you can use your commission to obtain one or more notary stamps or seals. The Department of Licensing does not provide notary stamps and seals. Check office supply stores and specialty notary equipment stores to find a vendor. A number of notary associations also have links to services that provide notary seals or stamps.

In order to have a stamp or seal made, you must provide a copy of your notary commission certificate to your stamp or seal vendor. Vendors are not allowed to create a notary stamp or seal until they have a copy of the certificate. It is your responsibility to make sure that all of the stamp or seal requirements listed below are met and that all of the information on the stamp is accurate and up to date. If any of the information on the stamp or seal changes, it is your responsibility to have your stamp updated.

A notary stamp or seal must conform to the following requirements:

- The stamp or seal must be either circular or rectangular; ∘ If circular, the stamp or seal must be a minimum one and five-eighths inches in diameter;
  - ∘ If rectangular, the stamp or seal must be a minimum one inch wide by one and five eighths inches;
- The stamp or seal must contain the following information:
  - ∘ The words “notary public”; ∘ The words “state of Washington”; ∘ The notary public’s name as commissioned; ∘ The notary public’s commission expiration date; ○ The notary public’s commission number;
• The text on a stamp or seal must be at least 8 point font
• The stamp or seal must be affixed in permanent ink and be capable of being photocopied.

It is extremely important that you guard your notary stamp and prevent others from using your stamp. The new notary statute states that “the seal or stamp should be kept in a locked and secured area, under the direct and exclusive control of the notary public,” which generally means that it needs to be kept under lock and key. Even if you work in a secure area, it is vital that the stamp not be accessible by anyone else, both to comply with the law and to ensure the sanctity of your notarial acts.

Renewing a notary public commission

RCW 42.45.260; WAC 308-30-030(6); WAC 308-30-060

For current active notaries public, renewing a notary public commission is a similar process to application. To renew your commission, you should complete the same process above of filling out the application, acquiring a new surety bond, and submitting these with a $30 renewal fee. After receiving a new certificate of commission, you will also need to purchase a new notary stamp or seal, as seals and stamps have the notary’s expiration date on them.

Active notaries should also be aware that their current license will remain in effect until their scheduled expiration date, despite the changes that arrive July 1st.

Applying for an Electronic Records Notary Public endorsement

RCW 42.45.200; WAC 308-30-030; WAC 308-30-050; WAC 308-30-060

In addition to the notary public commission, if you wish to be able to notarize documents in electronic formats, you can also apply to add an electronic records notary public endorsement to your commission. The endorsement is added to the commission that is being renewed or applied for and lasts as long as that commission does.
There are three ways to apply for an electronic records notary public endorsement. First, you can fill out section C of the notary public application if you are adding the endorsement at the same time that you are applying. Second, there is a separate application for an endorsement that you can complete if you are an active notary, currently, to apply for just the endorsement. Finally, this entire process has been simplified on the Department of Licensing online portal, which can be found on the website.

Regardless of what application method you choose, there is a $15 application fee for the endorsement. Once the fee and application are processed, the Department will send you a new commission certificate with the endorsement included.

As an additional requirement, if you apply for the electronic records endorsement, you will be required to provide the Department with the name of the technology provider that you choose to perform your notarial acts through. If you do not have that information when you apply for your endorsement, you have 30 days from the date the Department issues your endorsement to report the technology provider(s) you plan on using. Also, you can always change or add more technology providers by sending an updated form to the Department or by using the online portal. You cannot perform electronic notarizations until you have notified the Department of your technology selection and you must inform the Department of each technology provider you intend to use before you use them.

For more information on how the electronic records notary public endorsement works, see below in the Electronic Notarial Acts section.
How to Notarize
RCW 42.45.030-.080; RCW 42.45.130-190; WAC 308-30-020; WAC 308-30-100; WAC 308-30190-240

The notary public commission represents a serious duty with a substantial effect on legal documents and their validity. Because of the importance of the notary public’s role, and because a notarization has distinct legal repercussions, it is important that each notarial act be done correctly. Each notarial act has its own requirements for what steps need to be taken. Generally, there are three steps that must be taken for each notarization:

1. Identify the signing party
2. Confirm the competence, knowledge, and voluntariness of the signer
3. Perform the notarial act

In addition to these steps, the notary must keep in mind the most important rule of performing notarizations: physical presence.

Physical Presence
RCW 42.45.030; RCW 42.45.040; WAC 308-30-020

Under Washington State law, in all cases the signing party must “appear physically” before the notary, which means that they must be in the physical presence of the notary at the time of the notarial act. Using video communication software or other means of communicating over distances is not permitted. The physical presence rule applies to any signing party, even if they are personally known to the notary. This is also true for electronic notarizations of documents: the signing party or parties must be in the physical presence of the notary even though the documents will be on a computer or online.

Identify the signing party
RCW 42.45.050

One important function of a notary public is to witness that a signing party is the party that they are claiming to be. Because of that, whenever a notary performs a notarial act, they must first be sure to identify the party involved in that notarial act.

There are three ways that a notary can identify a party:

1. Identifying documents
2. Personal knowledge
3. Credible witnesses

Identifying documents
The most common method of verifying a signer’s identity is to look at some form of identifying documents. The Washington State notary statutes point out several options for documents that a notary can use to verify a signer’s identity:

- A passport
- A driver’s license
- A government-issued identification card
- Another form of government identification that contains the signature or photograph of the individual and is satisfactory to the notary

A notary can accept any identifying document that is either current, or expired for less than three years. As an example, a notary confirming an individual’s identity on January 1, 2019, could use a driver’s license that is current or that expired anytime from January 2, 2016 through December 31, 2018. Also note that there is nothing requiring these documents to be from any specific jurisdiction; a signer could use an Oregon driver’s license or a Canadian passport, as long as it is not more than three years expired.

Personal Knowledge

Personal knowledge is generally considered the simplest method of identifying an individual. If you personally know the signer, you do not need any additional identifying information.

It may be difficult to identify the level of personal knowledge needed to validate an individual’s identity. The notarial statute (RCW 42.45.050) says that a notarial officer “has personal knowledge of the identity of an individual appearing before the officer if the individual is personally known to the officer through dealings sufficient to provide reasonable certainty that the individual has the identity claimed.” Generally, you can rely on personal knowledge when you have known the individual a long enough time that you would be willing to swear in court as to who the signer is.
Credible Witness

As an alternative means of identifying a signing party, a credible witness may be brought in to verify the signer’s identity. This is a more difficult standard, because it requires having a third party involved in the process.

In order to use this method, a third-party witness must swear an oath and sign that the signing party to the document is who they say they are. The witness must be credible and personally known to you (see above on personal knowledge), and needs to provide identifying documents (see above on identifying documents) to prove their identity. Finally, both the signer and the witness must appear physically in front of you during the notarial act.

Confirm competency, knowledge, and voluntariness of the signer

RCW 42.45.060

Another important function of the notary public is to identify that the person signing is doing so of their own free will. Being able to see and interact with the signer gives you the opportunity to confirm that the signing party intends to sign the documents in question, is competent to sign them, and is doing so voluntarily.

Examples of situations where the signing party may not be competent, knowing, or signing voluntarily include where the signing party:

- Is signing under duress
- Does not read and write the language of the documents being signed
- Is intoxicated or under the influence of drugs
- Is mentally infirm
- Is underage

If you have doubts about the competency, knowledge, and voluntariness of a signer, you may ask questions and talk with the signer to get a better sense of their mental state. If you are not satisfied that the signer is competent, knowing, or signing voluntarily, you may refuse to perform the notarization.

Performing the notarial act

RCW 42.45.180; WAC 308-30-190; WAC 308-30-200; WAC 308-30-210

Once you have confirmed the identity and mental state of the signing party, the notarial act can take place. The notarial act consists of three parts: recording the act in a notarial journal, performing the notarial duty, and completing the notarial certificate.

Recording the act in a notarial journal

As of July 1, 2018, Washington State requires that all notarial acts be recorded in a notarial journal. The journal requirement protects notaries by creating a record of the notarial acts they perform. The journal can be purchased anywhere notary and office supplies are sold, and while their format may vary, there are a few requirements that the journal must include:

- You must maintain one, and only one, physical journal for notarial acts at any given time. The physical journal must be in a permanent, bound register with numbered pages.
  - If you have an electronic records notary public endorsement, you may also maintain an electronic journal. This journal may not replace the physical journal, and can only duplicate entries in the physical journal.
- The journal must be kept in a locked and secured area, under the exclusive control of the notary, when not in use.
- You must keep the journal for ten years after the last notarial act recorded in it.

There are a few required pieces of information that every entry in the journal must include. Beyond these, you should include whatever information you believe will be helpful in recording the notarial act, such as more details about the method of identification or the signing party’s fingerprint. There is no restriction on using short-hand or abbreviations, however if you choose to do so, you should include a key in case the journal needs to be inspected by a third party. The information required to be in each entry includes:

- The date and time of the act,
- A brief description of the document being signed and the act performed, and □ The full name and address of each signing party,
- The signing party’s signature (or the signature of that party’s proxy, see RCW 42.45.070), and
- A brief description of how you identified the signing party (“Driver’s license,” “Credible witness,” etc.)

Perform the notarial duty

Alongside recording the notarial act, it is important that you perform the duty that is being asked of you by the signing party and identified by the notarial certificate. The requirements for each of these duties are slightly different and are discussed below in more detail.

Complete the notarial certificate

An essential element to performing a notarial act is completing the notarial certificate, where your signature and seal will be placed. The certificate contains your verification of the act being witnessed. It may be a separate document, or it may be a section on an existing document.

Each certificate has a few required components that must be present; the minimum language is provided in state law, but the actual language may vary from document to document. As long as you can identify all four components in the notarial certificate, the language in the statement of particulars can vary from the language provided by state law. The components required for a notarial certificate include:
• Venue: the state and county where the notarial act was performed.

• “Statement of particulars”: the statement of which notarial act is being performed, which must include who the signing party is, when they are signing, and what they are specifically attesting to. For example, the statement of particulars for an acknowledgement may say, “This record was acknowledged before me on (date) by (name of signing party).” □ Notary’s Signature: there should be a space designated for your signature.

• Notary’s Stamp: there should also be a space designated for your seal or stamp.

It is important that a notary public who is not a licensed attorney should avoid making recommendations about adding certificates or changing substantive language in a notarial certificate because this may constitute legal advice. What exactly does or does not constitute legal advice depends on the facts of the situation, so the Department of Licensing cannot make specific recommendations regarding all situations. Remember, though, that the unauthorized practice of law is a gross misdemeanor in the state of Washington and is subject to other regulatory bodies such as the Washington State Bar Association, which may have more detailed information or guidelines available.

Given the need for notaries to avoid giving out legal advice, the Department sometimes receives questions about what a notary should do if a client presents them with incomplete documents. If a customer comes with a document that has no notarial certificate, you can provide the customer with all available certificates and have them choose the certificate they wish to add. Notaries are also allowed to correct clerical errors on a notarial certificate, such as spelling errors or an incorrect state printed on the certificate. Additionally, notaries can always seek advice from an attorney or suggest that the signing party do so if there are any specific questions.

The notarial certificate should be entirely on one page and should be incorporated as part of the document being notarized whenever possible. If the notarial certificate is on its own page, or is separate from the rest of the document, you should indicate on both the document being notarized and the certificate that the certificate is attached as a separate page.

A list of the notarial certificates provided by statute can be found later in this handbook.

Venue requirements

RCW 42.45.080; WAC 308-30-110

It is important to note the geographical limitations on a notary’s ability to perform notarial acts. Your notarial commission gives you the power to perform notarial acts anywhere in the state of Washington. This means that you and every signing party must be in Washington State at the time of the notarial act. Additionally, you should remember the physical presence requirement; all parties to a notarial act must be physically present with you for you to perform the notarial act. If you wish to perform notarial acts in another state or country, you will need to be licensed by the appropriate authority for that state or country.
Electronic Notarial Acts
As of July 1, 2018, notaries with an electronic records notary public endorsement will be permitted to perform notarial acts on electronic documents. In doing so, you will affix an electronic copy of your seal or stamp and your digital signature to an electronic document, usually in a .pdf format, and have the signing parties affix digital signatures to the document concurrently. This endorsement will allow for quicker transmission of documents, particularly in industries where large numbers of documents are transferred regularly, such as in the real estate industry.

How to apply for an electronic records endorsement was covered in an earlier section. This section will discuss how to notarize electronic documents, and limitations on the endorsement.

How to notarize electronic documents

Once you have an electronic records notary public endorsement, you can notarize electronic documents using appropriate software from a third party notary technology provider. As noted above, you must report each technology provider you intend to use to the Department before using that technology. One way to think about this software is as the analog for your physical seal or stamp; it is what you use to apply your seal or stamp image (and your signature), and you can only get it once you have your endorsement. Any technology you use must be “tamper-evident” and meet the minimum requirements of WAC 308-30-130. There are several companies that are offering these services, which you can find by searching online. The Department of Licensing does not endorse any particular notary technology at this time.

The basic requirements of electronic notarization are the same as they are for any notarization, as all requirements of chapter 42.45 RCW and chapter 308-30 WAC apply to both types of notarial acts. The specifics of how to notarize electronic documents, once you have secured your endorsement, vary based on the company and service that you choose, which makes giving specific information difficult. You should speak to your technology provider if you need more assistance about how to perform notarial acts with this software. Limitations on electronic notarization

While the incoming laws and rules allow notaries with electronic records endorsements to perform notarizations on electronic documents, there are two major limitations that you should keep in mind.

The first major limitation is that every party to the notarial act must still be physically present with you during the notarization. This means that even though the documents are electronic, the signing parties must still be signing these electronic documents on a computer in front of you. This is in contrast to another notary topic, known as remote notarization, where notaries may notarize documents over online communications software such as Skype, Facetime, or Google Hangouts. Washington law does not authorize notaries to perform remote notarizations.
The second major limitation has already been discussed, which is the journal requirement. The journal requirement is the same for electronic notarial acts as it is for all other notarial acts: each notarial act must be recorded in your journal. As stated above, a notary’s physical journal must contain records of all notarial acts, including electronic notarial acts. Electronic notarial software may create an electronic journal as a duplicate, but even then, you must record the act in your physical journal.

Specific Notarial Acts

RCW 42.45 lists the notarial acts that a notary public may perform, which includes:

- Taking an acknowledgement
- Witnessing or attesting signatures
- Administering oaths or affirmations
- Taking verification of oaths or affirmations
- Certifying or attesting a copy
- Receiving or noting a protest of a negotiable instrument
- Certifying an event has occurred or an act has been performed.

Below are descriptions of each of these acts and the minimum requirements of what a notary must do to complete them, in addition to the steps set out above. RCW 42.45.140 provides short form certificates that are considered sufficient under Washington State law. These short form certificates are the minimum examples provided by Washington State law; the certificates used in practice may have additional language included.

Taking an acknowledgement

RCW 42.45.010(1) and (8); RCW 42.45.030(1); RCW 42.45.140(1) and (2)

A notary who takes an acknowledgement confirms that the person before them was the signing party on a document that has already been signed. In this case, the notary has to confirm not that the document is being signed during the notarial act, but that the document was signed in the past and that the signing party before the notary was the signing party for the original signature.

It is important to note that an acknowledgement can be taken in either an individual or a representative capacity. These two acts have slightly different requirements, with the latter requiring additional information.

- Individual: For an individual acknowledgement, the signing party is confirming that they personally signed the document in the past.
- Representative: An individual may need to sign a record in a representative capacity, either for another individual (such as under a power of attorney) or on behalf of a business entity. For these acknowledgements, the representative must identify their title of authority and the party on behalf of whom the document is being acknowledged.

For acknowledgements in an individual capacity, the sample certificate is:
State of __________
County of __________
This record was acknowledged before me on (date) by (name(s) of individuals).

My commission expires:

For acknowledgements in a representative capacity, the sample certificate is:
State of __________
County of __________
This record was acknowledged before me on (date) by (name(s) of individuals) as (type of authority, such as officer or trustee) of (name of party on behalf of whom record was executed).

Witnessing or attesting signatures

RCW 42.45.010(8); RCW 42.45.030(3); RCW 42.45.140(4)

Witnessing or attesting a signing party’s signature can be done in one of two ways:

- Witness the signature taking place, by having the signing party physically present to sign the document.
- If the document is already signed, then the signing party can have the signature attested instead, where the signing party signs a second time in the notary’s presence.

The sample certificate for witnessing or attesting a signature is:
State of __________
County of __________
Signed or attested before me on (date) by (name(s) of individuals).

My commission expires:

Administering oath or affirmation

RCW 42.45.010(8)

Administering an oath or affirmation is by itself a simple process. The notary asks the swearing party to raise their right hand and either swear an oath or solemnly affirm that they will perform an action or uphold a specific standard based on the situation. For example, these are commonly used for swearing an official into office, where the new office-holder swears to uphold the standards of that office.

Because taking an oath or affirmation is primarily a verbal act, there is no certificate associated with it.

Taking verification of an oath or affirmation

RCW 42.45.010(8); RCW 42.45.030(2); RCW 42.45.140(3)

This notarial duty, also known as a “jurat,” is a combination of witnessing a signature and administering an oath. There are three steps that a notary will perform as part of this act:

• First, the signing party brings a written statement to the notary to be verified.
• Second, the notary has the signing party raise their hand and either swear an oath or solemnly affirm that the contents of the document are true.
• Finally, after the oath, the signing party signs the document in front of the notary.

The sample certificate for taking verification of an oath or affirmation is:

State of ____________

County of ____________

Signed and sworn to (or affirmed) before me on (date) by (name(s) of individuals making statement).

Certifying or attesting a copy

RCW 42.45.010(8); RCW 42.45.030(4); RCW 42.45.130(5)

A notary who certifies or attests a copy of a document is verifying that the document in question is an exact copy of another document. The notary must compare the copy with the original document and determine that the copy is a full, true, and accurate transcription or reproduction of the original.

The simplest way to ensure that the copy meets this standard is for the notary to make the copy themselves when possible. The notary, however, should avoid copying public documents that indicate that they should not be copied. Copies of these documents should be obtained ahead of time by the person requesting the certification.

The sample certificate for certifying or attesting a copy is:

State of ____________
County of ____________

I certify that this is a true and correct copy of a record in the possession of ____________

Certifying or noting a protest of a negotiable instrument

RCW 42.45.010(8); RCW 42.45.030(5)

As of July 1, 2018, a Washington notary is only allowed to certify and note protest of negotiable instruments under the direct supervision of a licensed attorney or a licensed financial institution such as a bank. This act requires specialized training and specific circumstances, so only notaries who are acting under the narrow circumstances permitted by statute duty should perform this act.
Certifying an event has occurred or an act has been performed
RCW 42.45.010(8); RCW 42.45.140(6); WAC 308-30-110

A notary may certify that an event has occurred or an act has been performed based on personal knowledge or “satisfactory evidence,” which often refers to the oath or affirmation of a credible witness personally known to the notary. When relying on the oath or affirmation of a witness, the act is very similar to performing a jurat, in that you will have the witness swear an oath or affirmation that the event occurred or the act was performed, then will have the signing party sign the document documenting that event or act. If the notary is relying on their own observations, they may skip this and simply notarize the document.

Keep in mind that just like with a jurat, if a notary is relying on the oath or affirmation of a third party reliable witness, that reliable witness should be someone that the notary has a personal enough connection such that they would be willing and able to testify to that relationship in court.

The sample certificate for taking verification of an oath or affirmation is:
State of ____________
County of ____________
I certify that the event described in this document has occurred or been performed.

Frequently Asked Questions
What sort of things could disqualify my application? Will a DUI disqualify me, and should I report it?

The notary public application asks about every applicant’s criminal history to determine their fitness for a notary public commission. If you report a criminal history, your application will not be automatically rejected; each application is examined to determine the fitness of each candidate.
The reasons that the Department may deny an application are listed in RCW 42.45.210 and RCW 18.235.130. Some of the most common of these reasons include:

- Failure to comply with the laws and requirements that govern notary publics;
- A conviction of either a felony or a crime involving fraud, dishonesty, or deceit; or,
- A fraudulent, dishonest, or deceitful misstatement or omission on a notary public application

Generally, the Department examines whether the application demonstrates that the applicant has the honesty, integrity, competence, and reliability to uphold the position. If there is some information that you need to disclose, it is recommended that you include a detailed summary of the facts to allow for a more complete review.

With regards to driving under the influence (“DUI”), the notary public application asks about felonies and gross misdemeanors, but does not ask for traffic offenses. In Washington, driving under the influence is not strictly a traffic offense; it can be charged as a gross misdemeanor or felony. For this reason, any convictions should be reported on the notary public application. As above, any disclosure on the application should be supported by a description of the facts.

Can I perform a notarization from just a copy of someone’s driver license and a matching signature?

No. In Washington State, the signing party must be in the physical presence of the notary. This is a common error and can put a notary at risk for disciplinary action and/or civil liability for improper notarization.

Should I keep copies of the documents that I notarize for my own records?

No. RCW 42.45.230(6) states that a notary public may not keep copies of documents that they notarize, unless they are a licensed attorney or other legal professionals as specified in the law. By keeping a notarial journal that meets the requirements of RCW 42.45.180 and WAC 308-30-200, a notary should have sufficient record of their notarial acts.

Can I charge for performing notarizations?

Yes. A notary can charge up to $10 per notarial act. They may also charge for travel expenses if the amount is agreed upon by the person requesting the notarization prior to the travel. See WAC 308-30-220.

Am I required to perform a notarial act when someone requests one?

No. You always have the authority to refuse to perform a notarial act unless refusal is prohibited by another law, such as Washington anti-discrimination laws. A notary has the authority to refuse to perform a notarial act if the notary is not satisfied with the evidence of a party’s identity or if the notary is not satisfied that the individual signing a record is competent, has the capacity to sign the record, and is doing so knowingly or voluntarily. See RCW 42.45.050 and RCW 42.45.060. Can I notarize I-9 employment forms, certificate of life forms, or other specific forms?

The I-9 employment form asks for a signature from for the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services an individual as a business representative, not a notary. Because of this, an I-9 form does not need to be notarized.

Certificate of life forms, which generally ask for signature by a public official to confirm that an individual is alive to receive pension benefits, generally may be notarized by a notary public. Washington State allows a notary public to certify that an event has occurred or an act has been performed and this has been interpreted to include verifying that an individual appeared before the notary on a specific date while alive. As always, please check with your specific clients and/or other appropriate authorities to confirm whether a specific form requires notarization.

For other specific forms, the question can be answered by determining if there is a notarial certificate that needs to be filled out as part of the document and if that certificate falls under one of the notarial duties discussed above and authorized by chapter 42.45 RCW listed above. If there is a notarial certificate that conforms to state requirements, or if a certificate can be logically attached to the document, then it is probably appropriate to notarize the document.

Is a state employee’s notarial journal public record or private property?

While generally a notary’s journal is considered private property, the journal entries that a notary public creates during the course of work as a state or local government employee in Washington are likely public records, due to the nature of government employee’s work and Washington public disclosure laws. The Department recognizes that this may create difficulties for state or local government employees who perform notarizations both while working and outside of work.

A notary may be able to argue that specific journal entries are not public record, because they were created outside of the scope of their employment. In order to prove this, though, the notary is responsible for demonstrating which entries are work-related and which are not. To help prove which entries are public record, the notary public can segregate their state-work notarizations and after-hours notarizations into different sections of the journal, such as recording all of the after-hours notarizations in the back of the journal. Color coding journal entries may be another way to distinguish which entries are public record.

The Department advises any notary who works for the state or a local government agency in Washington to consult with their agency’s public records advisor on these issues.

What is a Notario Publico and how does it relate to a notary public commission?

The terms “Notario Publico” or “notario” are similar to notary public commissions as we understand them in Washington, but a notary public should be careful not to confuse the two. It is illegal under RCW 42.45.230(3) for a Washington notary to advertise themselves as a notario publico or notario.
In some foreign countries, notario publicos serve similar functions to notary publics, but have additional authority similar to licensed attorneys. There have been several cases of American notary publics advertising themselves as notario publicos, which may lead some people to believe that a notary public is capable of offering legal advice, which is not the case.

Because the term notario publico has been associated with legal practice, a notary public must avoid advertising themselves as a “notario” or “notario publico” unless they are also a licensed attorney.

Is there an education requirement to get a Notary Public Commission?

At this time there is no education requirement or examination as part of the notary public commission application. The Department of Licensing strongly recommends notaries public seek out education regarding their commission and there are a number of organizations that provide notary education. Additionally, we recommend that notaries keep a copy of this handbook and refer to it if they have any questions about the notary practice.

Finally, a notary with questions may reach out to the Department of Licensing by phone or email to get answers to questions that aren’t answered elsewhere.

Can a notary notarize a document for a spouse or family member?

Generally, a notary public should not perform a notarial act for a spouse or family member.

Under Washington law, a notary may not notarize their own signature nor perform a notarial act if the notary’s spouse or domestic partner are a party or will have a direct beneficial interest. While not expressly prohibited by chapter 42.45 RCW, it is also generally inadvisable for a notary to notarize a document for extended family members. A notary that performs a notarial act for a family member may be seen as having a conflict of interest in the transaction, which could call the notarial act into question.

Can a notary perform notarial acts for documents or signing parties in other languages?

There is nothing in state law that forbids a notary public from notarizing a document written in a foreign language or for a signing party that does not speak English. However, the notary must be sure they can still meet the requirements for performing a notarial act.

A notary is generally not responsible for confirming the contents of a document (outside of certifying a copy, but that has unique standards), however, they do need to make sure the correct notarial certificate is on the document. As of July 1, 2018, all notarial certificates must either be in English, or in dual-languages where one of the languages is English, so the notary should be able to identify the certificate on a document being notarized.

A notary should also be aware of the inherent additional difficulty associated with confirming the identity of a signing party when they do not share a common language. Speaking different languages can make it difficult for a notary to properly identify the signing party and what is being asked of them. If the notary has access to a translator that they can rely on, it can help to alleviate this risk.
Remember, a notary has the right to refuse to notarize a document if they cannot confirm the required information for that notarial act, including the identity of the signing party.

What do I need to know about Apostilles? Are they the same as notarizations?

When documents will be used outside the United States in courts or other official capacities, they usually must be verified through a process called an apostille. Apostilles are performed by the Washington Secretary of State’s office, who verify the commission of the person who notarized the documents.

One of the key differences between apostilles and notarizations is that notarizations are handled by notaries public, whereas apostilles are handled by the Secretary of State’s office. A notary cannot perform an apostille. You can find more information about apostilles through the Secretary of State’s website.

On resignation from, or the revocation or expiration of, the notary public's commission, or on the expiration of the date set forth in the stamping device, the notary public shall disable the stamping device by destroying, defacing, damaging, erasing, or securing it against use in a manner that renders it unusable. On the death or adjudication of incompetency of a notary public, the notary public's personal representative or guardian or any other person knowingly in possession of the stamping device shall render it unusable by destroying, defacing, damaging, erasing, or securing it against use in a manner that renders it unusable.

(2) The seal or stamp should be kept in a locked and secured area, under the direct and exclusive control of the notary public. If a notary public's stamping device is lost or stolen, the notary public or the notary public's personal representative or guardian shall notify promptly the department on discovering that the device is lost or stolen. Any replacement device must contain a variance from the lost or stolen seal or stamp.

RCW 42.45.170
Fees.

(1) The director may establish by rule the maximum fees that may be charged by notaries public for various notarial services.

(2) A notary public need not charge fees for notarial acts.

RCW 42.45.180 Journal.

(1) A notary public shall maintain a journal in which the notary public chronicles all notarial acts that the notary public performs. The notary public shall retain the journal for ten years after the performance of the last notarial act chronicle in the journal. The journal is to be destroyed as required by the director in rule upon completion of the ten-year period.

(2) Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter requiring a notary public to maintain a journal, a notary public who is an attorney licensed to practice law in this state is not required to chronicle a notarial act in a journal if documentation of the notarial act is otherwise maintained by professional practice.

(3) A notary public shall maintain only one tangible journal at a time to chronicle notarial acts, whether those notarial acts are performed regarding tangible or electronic records. The journal must be a permanent, bound register with numbered pages. An electronic records notary public may also maintain an electronic format journal, which can be kept concurrently with the tangible journal. The electronic journal must be in a permanent, tamper-evident electronic format complying with the rules of the director.

(4) An entry in a journal must be made contemporaneously with performance of the notarial act and contain the following information:

(a) The date and time of the notarial act;
(b) A description of the record, if any, and type of notarial act;
(c) The full name and address of each individual for whom the notarial act is performed; and
(d) Any additional information as required by the director in rule.

(5) The journal shall be kept in a locked and secured area, under the direct and exclusive control of the notary public. Failure to secure the journal may be cause for the director to take administrative action against the commission held by the notary public. If a notary public's journal is lost or stolen, the notary public promptly shall notify the department on discovering that the journal is lost or stolen.

(6) On resignation from, or the revocation or suspension of, a notary public's commission, the notary public shall retain the notary public's journal in accordance with subsection (1) of this section and inform the department where the journal is located.

(2) An electronic records notary public may select one or more tamper-evident technologies to perform notarial acts with respect to electronic records that meet the standards provided in subsection (4) of this section. A person cannot require an electronic records notary public to perform a notarial act with respect to an electronic record with a technology that the notary public has not selected.

(3) Before an electronic records notary public performs the notary public's initial notarial act with respect to an electronic record, an electronic records notary public shall notify the department that he or she will be performing notarial acts with respect to electronic records and identify the technology the electronic records notary public intends to use.
(4) The director shall establish standards for approval of technology in rule. If the technology conforms to the standards, the director shall approve the use of the technology.

   (b) Be a citizen or permanent legal resident of the United States;

   (c) Be a resident of or have a place of employment or practice in this state;

   (d) Be able to read and write English; and

(3) Before issuance of a commission as a notary public, an applicant for the commission shall execute an oath of office and submit it to the department in the format prescribed by the director in rule.

(4) Before issuance of a commission as a notary public, the applicant for a commission shall submit to the director an assurance in the form of a surety bond in the amount established by the director in rule. The assurance must be issued by a surety or other entity licensed or authorized to write surety bonds in this state. The assurance must be effective for a four-year term or for a term that expires on the date the notary public's commission expires. The assurance must cover acts performed during the term of the notary public's commission and must be in the form prescribed by the director. If a notary public violates law with respect to notaries public in this state, the surety or issuing entity is liable under the assurance. The surety or issuing entity shall give at least thirty days' notice to the department before canceling the assurance. The surety or issuing entity shall notify the department not later than thirty days after making a payment to a claimant under the assurance. A notary public may perform notarial acts in this state only during the period that a valid assurance is on file with the department.

(5) On compliance with this section, the director shall issue a commission as a notary public to an applicant for a term of four years or for a term that expires on the date of expiration of the assurance, whichever comes first.

(6) A commission to act as a notary public authorizes the notary public to perform notarial acts. The commission does not provide the notary public any immunity or benefit conferred by law of this state on public officials or employees.
(7) An individual qualified under (a) of this subsection may apply to the director for a commission as an electronic records notary public. The applicant shall comply with and provide the information required by rules established by the director and pay the relevant application fee.

RCW 42.45.210

Grounds to deny, refuse to renew, revoke, suspend, or condition commission of notary public.

(1) In addition to conduct defined as unprofessional under RCW 18.235.130, the director may take action as provided for in RCW 18.235.110 against a commission as notary public for any act or omission that demonstrates the individual lacks the honesty, integrity, competence, or reliability to act as a notary public, including:

(a) Failure to comply with this chapter;

(b) A fraudulent, dishonest, or deceitful misstatement or omission in the application for a commission as a notary public submitted to the department;

(c) A conviction of the applicant or notary public of any felony or crime involving fraud, dishonesty, or deceit;

(d) A finding against, or admission of liability by, the applicant or notary public in any legal proceeding or disciplinary action based on the applicant's or notary public's fraud, dishonesty, or deceit;

(e) Failure by the notary public to discharge any duty required of a notary public, whether by this chapter, rules of the director, or any federal or state law;

(f) Use of false or misleading advertising or representation by the notary public representing that the notary public has a duty, right, or privilege that the notary public does not have;

(g) Violation by the notary public of a rule of the director regarding a notary public;

(h) Denial, refusal to renew, revocation, suspension, or conditioning of a notary public commission in another state;

(i) Failure of the notary public to maintain an assurance as provided in RCW 42.45.200(4); or

(j) Making or noting a protest of a negotiable instrument without being a person authorized by RCW 42.45.030(5).

(2) If the director denies, refuses to renew, revokes, suspends, imposes conditions, or otherwise sanctions, a commission as a notary public, the applicant or notary public is entitled to timely notice and hearing in accordance with chapter 34.05 RCW.
The authority of the director to take disciplinary action on a commission as a notary public does not prevent a person from seeking and obtaining other criminal or civil remedies provided by law.

RCW 42.45.220

Database of notaries public.

The director shall maintain an electronic database of notaries public:

(1) Through which a person may verify the authority of a notary public to perform notarial acts; and

(2) Which indicates whether a notary public has notified the director that the notary public will be performing notarial acts on electronic records.

RCW 42.45.230

Prohibited acts.

(1) A commission as a notary public does not authorize an individual to:

   (a) Assist persons in drafting legal records, give legal advice, or otherwise practice law;

   (b) Act as an immigration consultant or an expert on immigration matters;

   (c) Represent a person in a judicial or administrative proceeding relating to immigration to the United States, United States citizenship, or related matters;

   (d) Receive compensation for performing any of the activities listed in this subsection; or (e) Provide court reporting services.

(2) A notary public may not engage in false or deceptive advertising.

(3) A notary public, other than an attorney licensed to practice law in this state, or a Washington licensed limited license legal technician acting within the scope of his or her license, may not use the term "notario" or "notario publico."

(4) A notary public, other than an attorney licensed to practice law in this state or a limited license legal technician acting within the scope of his or her license, may not assist another person in selecting the appropriate certificate required by RCW 42.45.130.

(5) A notary public, other than an attorney licensed to practice law in this state, or a Washington licensed limited license legal technician acting within the scope of his or her license, may not advertise or represent that the notary public may assist persons in drafting legal records, give legal advice, or otherwise practice law. If a notary public who is not an attorney licensed to practice law in this state, or a Washington-licensed limited license legal technician acting within the scope of his or her license, in any manner advertises or represents that the notary public offers notarial services, whether orally or in a record, including broadcast media, print media, and the internet, the notary public shall include the following statement, or an alternate statement authorized or required by the director, in the advertisement or representation, prominently and in each language used in the advertisement or representation: "I am not an attorney licensed to practice law in this state. I am not allowed to draft legal records, give advice on legal matters, including immigration, or charge a fee for those activities." If the form of advertisement or representation is not broadcast media, print media, or the internet and does not permit inclusion of the statement required by this subsection because of size, it must be displayed prominently or provided at the place of performance of the notarial act before the notarial act is performed.

(6) Except as otherwise allowed by law, a notary public may not withhold access to or possession of an original record provided by a person that seeks performance of a notarial act by the notary public. A notary public may not maintain copies or electronic images of documents notarized unless the copies or images are maintained by an attorney or Washington-licensed limited license legal technician acting within his or her scope of practice for the performance of legal services or for other services performed for the client and the copies or images are not maintained solely as part of the notary transaction.

Validity of notarial acts.

Except as otherwise provided in RCW 42.45.020(2), the failure of a notarial officer to perform a duty or meet a requirement specified in this chapter does not invalidate a notarial act performed by the notarial officer. The validity of a notarial act under this chapter does not prevent an aggrieved person from seeking to invalidate the record or transaction that is the subject of the notarial act or from seeking other remedies based on law of this state other than this chapter or law of the United States. This section does not validate a purported notarial act performed by an individual who does not have the authority to perform notarial acts. Nothing in chapter 281, Laws of 2017 gives the director authority to invalidate a notarial act.

RCW 42.45.250

Rules.

(1) The director may adopt rules necessary to implement this chapter.

(2) In adopting, amending, or repealing rules about notarial acts with respect to electronic records, the director shall consider standards, practices, and customs of other jurisdictions that substantially enact this chapter.
